THIS IS UNEVALUATED INFORMATION

1. The Köppelsdorfer Elektro-Apparate-Fabrik is a SAG plant.[1] The main plant is Hescho-Kahla. Six other plants belong to this SAG. They are located in Kahla, Hermsdorf, Könitz, Zöllnitz and Unterpreilipp. The location of the sixth plant is unknown.[2]

2. There are 1,252 workers employed at the Köppelsdorf plant, which manufactures radios. Approximately 60% of the plant's production goes to reparations; the remaining 40% is sold to the Handels-Organisation (Trade Organization) (HO). The total production at Köppelsdorf is divided according to quality into Categories I, II and III. Category I and II products go to reparations accounts; only Category III products are sold to the HO. At the present the Köppelsdorf plant is beginning the production of loud speakers for television sets, which are allegedly to be produced at the Sachsenwerk.[3]

3. Although VEB's are guarded by the People's Police (Volkspolizei), this is not the case at SAG plants. Here the guards are German civilians who wear uniforms and are armed with pistols. The prerequisite for obtaining a job on the work guard is membership in the SED. The uniform of the work guard is brown and consists of long pants, a coat and a cap with visor.

4. One (fnu) Osciadovski, a Russian, is the general director of the SAG and, at the same time, the political instructor of the Russian occupation troops. The two directors are German. The commercial director is (fnu) Dornhuesel, who is about 27 years old and was formerly chief bookkeeper. The technical director is (fnu) Langhein, who is about 28 or 29 years old. A short time ago, Langhein attended the SED Party School, and he is greatly feared by the personnel. Over the two directors is the local chief of the SED (fnu) Gemeinhard. Gemeinhard is the plant group leader and came to the plant from the Land Party School in Weimar at the end of February 1952. He is about 24 or 25 years old.

5. About 60 People's Police are billeted in the newly constructed People's Police barracks on the Langenberg near Köppelsdorf. The chief of this unit is Polizeimeister (fnu)Grams. On about 1 July 1952 another People's Police unit of about 40 men came to Heinersdorf. These men are the so-called Stalin Students (Stalinschüler). They are officer candidates who are allegedly undergoing four weeks of "trial on the front" (Frontbewährung) at the border. This
